

BIO-PHYSICAL CAPABILITIES FOR WILDLIFE — ELK —

DESCRIPTIVE LEGEND

When the concentration of elk is high, the habitat is considered to be of high quality. The habitat is considered to be of low quality when the concentration of elk is low. The habitat is considered to be of medium quality when the concentration of elk is moderate.

When the concentration of elk is high, the habitat is considered to be of high quality. The habitat is considered to be of low quality when the concentration of elk is low. The habitat is considered to be of medium quality when the concentration of elk is moderate.

When the concentration of elk is high, the habitat is considered to be of high quality. The habitat is considered to be of low quality when the concentration of elk is low. The habitat is considered to be of medium quality when the concentration of elk is moderate.

When the concentration of elk is high, the habitat is considered to be of high quality. The habitat is considered to be of low quality when the concentration of elk is low. The habitat is considered to be of medium quality when the concentration of elk is moderate.

When the concentration of elk is high, the habitat is considered to be of high quality. The habitat is considered to be of low quality when the concentration of elk is low. The habitat is considered to be of medium quality when the concentration of elk is moderate.

When the concentration of elk is high, the habitat is considered to be of high quality. The habitat is considered to be of low quality when the concentration of elk is low. The habitat is considered to be of medium quality when the concentration of elk is moderate.

When the concentration of elk is high, the habitat is considered to be of high quality. The habitat is considered to be of low quality when the concentration of elk is low. The habitat is considered to be of medium quality when the concentration of elk is moderate.

When the concentration of elk is high, the habitat is considered to be of high quality. The habitat is considered to be of low quality when the concentration of elk is low. The habitat is considered to be of medium quality when the concentration of elk is moderate.

When the concentration of elk is high, the habitat is considered to be of high quality. The habitat is considered to be of low quality when the concentration of elk is low. The habitat is considered to be of medium quality when the concentration of elk is moderate.

When the concentration of elk is high, the habitat is considered to be of high quality. The habitat is considered to be of low quality when the concentration of elk is low. The habitat is considered to be of medium quality when the concentration of elk is moderate.

82K/1 FINDLAY CREEK LOCALITY DISTRICT BRITISH COLUMBIA

