A SPECIAL MESSAGE TO TRAPPERS.

The Game Department is extremely anxious to impress upon all trappers the necessity of preserving their fur-bearing animals, especially beaver. Trappers should refrain from trapping these animals unless they have sufficient number on their trap-line to warrant trapping. Beaver must not be trapped unless the Beaver-tagging Regulations set forth herein are fully complied with.

The Game Department will give trappers who try to conserve their beaver, as well as other fur-bearing animals, all the assistance in its power to protect their lines from poachers, but, on the other hand, will cancel the lines of those trappers who wilfully overtrap.

Registered trappers are particularly requested to adhere to the following:—

- (1) Do not overtrap; conserve the fur-bearing animals on your trap-line.

- (2) Plainly mark your trap-line and refrain from trespassing on any other trapper's line or private land.
- (3) Please make your application for renewal of your registered line and your return of catch covering the past season's operations after the expiration of your Special Firearms Licence, or at least before September 30th, as failure to renew or submit your return of catch may place your application for registration in line for cancellation. Trappers must surrender their Resident Special Firearms Licences upon expiration, showing on the back thereof correct information of big-game and fur-bearing animals taken.
- (4) Report every violation of the "Game Act" or regulations immediately to the nearest Game Warden or Provincial Constable.
- (5) Suggestions for improvement of the Trapping Laws will gladly be received at all times and given careful consideration by the Game Department.
- (6) Remember that the use of poison or pit-lamps in taking fur is prohibited.
- (7) Sale or transfer of any registered trap-lines is prohibited except under certain conditions, and only on permission of the Game Commission.
- (8) White men and Indians are urgently requested to co-operate in conserving fur-bearing animals.
- (9) PREVENT FOREST FIRES. Report any forest fire immediately to the nearest Fire Warden, Game Warden, or Provincial Constable.
- (10) Under 1931 amendments to the "Land Act," it is provided that where any land described in any application for pre-emption record comprises an area situate within the limits of a trap-line registered under the "Game Act," the Minister of Lands and Forests may direct that the pre-emption record shall be granted subject to the continued exercise by the registered holder of the trap-line of all its rights thereto or thereunder, including the exclusive rights of trapping over that area, for a period not exceeding two years from the date of the pre-emption record, in which case the Minister of Lands and Forests shall cause a notation to be made on the certificate of pre-emption record for entry in the Land Office register and notice thereof to be given to the pre-emptor.

FUR SALES.

- (11) Every fur-trader, in purchasing fur, must insert in his record-book the number of the licence of the person by whom the pelts or skins of fur-bearing animals were trapped.

FUR SHIPMENTS.

- (12) No person shall make any shipment of any game, or any part thereof, or the eggs of any game bird, whether for export or to a destination within the Province, by any railway, steamship, or express company, or other common carrier, without first preparing the shipment so that the package or receptacle used for purposes of the shipment may be easily opened for examination of the contents, or else by preparing the shipment by plainly marking on the outside of the package or receptacle, or on a label securely attached thereto, a full description in detail of the contents; and no person shall make any shipment of any game, or any part thereof, or the eggs of any game bird, whether for export or to a destination within the Province, without first plainly marking on the package or receptacle used for purposes of the shipment, or on a label securely attached thereto, the names and addresses of the consignor and consignee.

PREPARATION OR CARE OF GAME MEAT.

BIG GAME.

1. Go prepared. The following equipment is either essential or desirable in the care of a big-game carcass: Hunting knife, belt axe, 30 feet of $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch rope, some twine, several pieces of clean wiping cloth, four (4) muslin or cloth sacks, each large enough to hold a quarter of the animal, and several pieces of old but clean canvas for use when carrying the meat on pack-horses.

2. As soon as possible after the animal is shot insert the knife at the point of the brisket with back of the blade against the breastbone, point the tip toward the backbone at the top of the shoulders just under the windpipe, and cut diagonally forward toward the head to sever the large blood-vessels in the neck. If possible, first turn the animal with its head down-hill so that it will bleed freely. Coast deer may be draped across several logs to provide the same effect.

3. After the animal has bled well, turn the carcass with head up-hill and open it from the vent to the throat. Use the hand axe to break the pelvic bone and breastbone. Be careful not to puncture the intestine or paunch. If the animal is first placed on an incline, the paunch and intestines will roll out more freely. Slip your knife forward between the ribs and the paunch (stomach) and cut the muscular diaphragm loose. Cut the windpipe and gullet free as far forward as possible. Take the windpipe and gullet in the left hand and pull backward, at the same time cutting free from the carcass that portion which tends to hold.

4. In the case of deer, place the carcass in position to drain. Wipe the inside of the carcass dry with clean cloth. Do not wash with water. Remove the dark tufts of hair on the hind legs. These are glandular areas which secrete a foul-smelling material that may contaminate the meat. Before using your knife again, you should carefully wipe it clean. The testes left on the carcass will cause no harm.

5. In case the carcass cannot be hung up or is not removed to camp immediately spread it open with a short spreader-stick across the chest to cool as rapidly as possible and prevent meat from spoiling. Do not leave a carcass exposed to the sun; drag it to a shady place. Certain additional precautions are necessary in the treatment of moose or elk. The carcass must be propped open in several places to permit rapid cooling. Make sure that the pelvis also has been split and propped open to allow the large mass of meat in the hindquarters to cool as rapidly as possible. Roll the animal on its back so that the warm air and steam which rises from the body cavity may escape and speed up the cooling process and that the maximum area may be exposed to the air. Never leave warm meat in the cloth or canvas containers. Unpack the meat from the cloth or muslin sacks each night and allow it to hang in a cool, dry place. When horses are used for packing, the meat should be wrapped in clean canvas with the hair side toward the horse. Packing should be done only after the meat has become cooled.

6. When the entire carcass is to be transported, leave the hide on the animal to prevent the meat from becoming soiled and drying out.

7. If it is desired to save the head and scalp for mounting, do not stick the animal in the throat. Open the skin squarely on the side of each shoulder, skin down to the leg on one side, cut across to the other leg, preserving the brisket skin intact. Roll the animal over and skin down from the shoulder in the same manner until the cuts meet. Then, starting on top of the animal and between the shoulders, open the skin at the back of the neck almost to the antlers. Pull the skin free from neck and shoulders and up to the head. Then, and not until then, open the animal's throat and bleed in the usual manner. A neck skin cut where the usual inexperienced hunter thinks is proper will be eight to twelve inches too short for good mounting.

UPLAND GAME BIRDS.

Grouse often require particular attention, as they are killed early in the season when the weather is still warm. Special treatment is also necessary due to the berry juices that leak from shot-holes in the intestines and stain the meat, often imparting a strong flavour to the flesh. For this reason it is advisable to remove the viscera from grouse (particularly blue grouse) as soon as they are killed. Make a small incision near the vent large enough to insert two fingers, and pull out the contents. When the birds are prepared in this way, it will be necessary to make doubly sure that flies do not gain access to the incision. Do not leave birds in a hunting coat or piled in a car trunk. Hang them in a cool place, enclosed in a muslin sack to keep out the flies. It is advisable to clean all game birds, including water-fowl, soon after they are shot, or removed to a place of residence in order to prevent the intestines from leaking and the juices tainting the meat.
